Raj Moham

Vice-President

Singapore Organisation of Seamen (SOS)

Nominated by the Singapore Organisation of Seamen.

Raj Moham has been a Singapore Organisation of Seamen (SOS) member since 1985. His passion for the welfare of members and active participation in union activities led him to be co-opted into the SOS executive committee (EXCO) in 1990. He was elected as an EXCO member in 1991 and Vice-President since 2015.

Additionally, he served as an alternate NTUC International Relations Committee member from 2019 to 2023.

Brother Raj was also appointed as a member of several SOS sub-committees. Understanding the sacrifices of seafarers who spend a long time away from home, he strongly advocates for meaningful support to members and their families. He has contributed significantly to the union's proactive approach to protecting and advancing the interests of members and their families through the union's various welfare schemes.

As a unionist, he passionately advocates the value of union membership. His ability to relate to and solve members' concerns has forged a strong culture of trust and camaraderie in SOS, which has positively impacted membership retention.

As SOS's vice president, Brother Raj has played an essential role in representing the union and strengthening its external and industrial relations with local and international maritime partners and fellow unionists to advance Singapore's Labour Movement.

Driven by the determination to better the lives of seafarers, he has left a positive impact on the lives of many members, inspiring fellow EXCO members to serve with passion and perseverance.
