

PARTNER OF LABOUR MOVEMENT

Zeng Xianting

Director

Advanced Manufacturing Training Academy (AMTA)

Nominated by the United Workers of Electronics & Electrical Industries.

Dr Zeng Xianting, the Director of AMTA, significantly contributes to wage growth and worker welfare in the manufacturing sector by strategically aligning training programmes with industry transformation needs and integrating industry-recognised certificates. His dedication to workforce development and employer engagement bolsters workers' skill sets and employability, particularly benefiting mid-career professionals, leading to a more skilled and well-compensated workforce.

Leading AMTA, Dr Zeng has launched company-oriented training initiatives complemented by mentorship. These programs help employees acquire new skills and transform their careers, thus promoting the adoption of advanced manufacturing practices and benefiting union members. These efforts enhance worker well-being and foster a collaborative work environment within the industry.

Dr Zeng's commitment to keeping training in sync with industry advancements, alongside advocating for continuous skill enhancement and certification, amplifies job opportunities. His collaboration with industry and training partners in the ecosystem and emphasis on lifelong learning enhances workers' adaptability and attractiveness to employers, driving success in the dynamic manufacturing landscape.