Annex A: FJST Forum 2018 overview

Date: 11 January 2018 (Thursday)
Time: 8:30am – 12:30pm
Venue: Stephen Riady Auditorium @ NTUC Level 7, One Marina Boulevard

Rapid technological advancements across industries, new business models and other socio-economic and geo-political drivers will transform or make redundant traditional jobs while creating new specialised jobs. In the new normal, skills acquisition will have to increase in frequency while working people will progressively experience more transitions in their employment lifecycles – a working person may be in a multinational corporation today, a small medium enterprise tomorrow, and opt to freelance in the near future. In this rapidly changing landscape, transformation is critical and requires strong partnerships between unions, our working people, enterprises, education and training providers, professional guilds, and the Government to enable meaningful and mutually-reinforcing transformation for the benefit of all stakeholders and our economy.

In 2017, Singapore launched industry transformation maps in 23 industries with growth plans covering transformation of jobs and skills. FJST Forum kicks off 2018 with insights into future trends on jobs, skills and training through sharing by thought leaders and industry experts from the Labour Movement, the Government, enterprises and consultancy firms.
